THE WORKS OF JOHN HELD JR

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Thanks are hereby extended to the following for permission to reproduce pictures in this volume: The New Yorker, Vanity Fair, Country Life, Colliers, and Life.

I wish especially to thank Mr. Hal Burrows, he being a kind friend and true, for his assistance in the somewhat illegitimate conception of several of the pictures.

JOHN HELD JR

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY JOHN HELD, JR.

PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

I have known John Held Junior ever since he was born. His first official job, which was witnessed by the city editor of the Salt Lake Tribune on which he was working at the time, was—what? Oh, all right, perhaps we had better not be too explicit about that first job. His second official job was—please don't interrupt,— there is nothing wrong with a cartoonist's being hungry. That's perfectly natural, isn't it? His third official act was to shout, "Where the hell is my pencil?" and placing it in the left side of his tiny mouth, (Held was always left handed and still is, for that matter) he thereupon drew his first picture on what later turned out to be a brand new diaper which his mother had placed there in anticipation of his first official job. So there you are, I got it in after all. I've always said, if I'm allowed to coin a phrase, where there's a will there's a way.

As I was about to say I have known John Held, Jr. ever since he was born and I get pretty sick of him sometimes.
